

Wall Map of the “Holy Roman Empire of the German Nation”: Nicolas de Fer, L’Empire d’Allemagne (1705, reprint from 1770)

Abstract

The 1705 map L’Empire d’Allemagne by the French cartographer Nicolas de Fer (shown here as a reprint from 1770) shows the ten imperial circles, that is: the Franconian, Swabian, Bavarian, Upper Rhenish, Lower Rhenish-Westphalian, Electoral Rhenish, Austrian, Burgundian, Upper Saxon, and Lower Saxon imperial circles.

Source

Source: Nicolas de Fer, L’Empire d’Allemagne, 1705 (shown here as a reprint from 1770), engraving. Available online at: <https://de.wikipedia.org/wiki/Datei:Reichskarte1705.jpg>

This work has been identified as being free of known restrictions under copyright law, including all related and neighboring rights.

Recommended Citation: Wall Map of the “Holy Roman Empire of the German Nation”: Nicolas de Fer, L’Empire d’Allemagne (1705, reprint from 1770), published in: German History Intersections, <https://germanhistory-intersections.org/en/germanness/ghis:image-227> [April 26, 2024].