

Map: Settlement and origin of German-language migrants in Tsarist Russia (1763-1914)

Abstract

The map shows the Baltic areas annexed by the Tsarist Empire in 1721, to which (middle-high) German-speaking people migrated from the late twelfth and early thirteenth centuries. In view of the ideologization of the topics “Eastern settlement,” “Russian-Germans,” and “Germans from Russia” it should be noted that in all these areas German-speaking people have formed very small minorities among Baltic, Slavic and Balkan-speaking people.

Source

Source: Dirk Hoerder, Cultures in Contact: World Migrations in the Second Millennium. Durham, N.C.: Duke Univ. Press, 2002, ill. 13.3.

Recommended Citation: Map: Settlement and origin of German-language migrants in Tsarist Russia (1763-1914), published in: German History Intersections,

<<https://germanhistory-intersections.org/en/migration/ghis:image-100>> [April 27, 2024].